Regardt (Reggie) Ferreira, Ph.D., is the Director of the Tulane University's Disaster Resilience Leadership Academy and Associate Professor of Social Work at the Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana, United States. He currently serves as the editor for the American Psychological Association Traumatology journal, focused on resilience practices amongst traumatized individuals, families and communities. He received his undergraduate degree in Social Work and master degree in Disaster Risk Management at the University of the Free State in Bloemfontein, South Africa, and his Ph.D. in Social Work from the University of Louisville, in Louisville, Kentucky. He joined the Tulane University faculty in 2013 where he divides his time between administration, applied research, program development, community work, and teaching activities. His main research interest is at the intersection of disaster, mental health and resilience; with work conducted in Europe, Africa, North America, the Caribbean and South Asia. Over the past two decades, he has been involved with several projects focused on disaster risk reduction and fostering resilience with projects totaling over $25 million in federal and foundation funding. Dr. Ferreira's work in the classroom has been recognized with several teaching awards for his innovative approaches to teaching. His interdisciplinary work includes over 100 published journal articles, chapters, and scientific abstracts on a variety of trauma and resilience topics, and his work most recently has featured in popular media outlets such as CNN, Rolling Stone, HBO/VICE, Fox News, NBC, Reuters, Medscape, NPR, ScienceDaily and USA Today. Reggie hails originally from Bloemfontein, South Africa.

PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT:Academic Program Development:*Study Abroad: South Africa

Developed and conducted a study abroad tour (3 credits) to South Africa in 2014 with a total of 10 students in South Africa for a period of 2 weeks that focused on experiential learning focused on educating students on community development in a developing country context. The study abroad curriculum had an emphasis on the intersection of disaster management and social work to advance community resilience.

Doctorate of Social Work:

Assisted with the development and launch of the Tulane School of Social Work, Doctorate of Social Work program in 2014. Responsible for overseeing the research curriculum of the program (2014-2017). Developed a total of three research courses. Translated an on-ground research course to online in 2019. Responsible for research practicum examination and coordination.

Master of Science in Disaster Resilience Leadership:

Directed the launch of the online Graduate Certificate in Disaster Resilience Leadership and the online Master of Science in Disaster Resilience Leadership to form a dual degree with the online Masters of Social Work degree in 2020. Supervised personnel, day to day operations, of course development, program marketing, program recruitment strategy, and accreditation of new online program.
